Our physical surroundings on Earth are called the 'environment' and include everything living and everything that isn't.

Find this painting called Wooleen from a Helicopter by Lorna Chick. Lorna was interested in the environment and how it was changing quickly.

Write down or talk about your answers.

- What can you see in the painting?

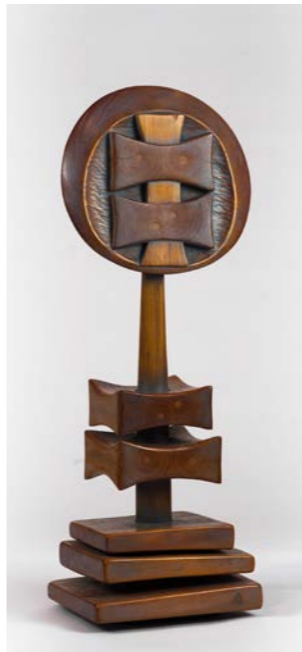

- How many tractors can you count? Remember, don't touch the painting.

Pictures are made up of shapes and patterns.

Can you find this painting by George Bell which has lots of different shapes in it?

What shapes do you see? Draw them here

• Draw a self-portrait or a portrait of someone you care about in this box.

A 'symbol' is something which visually represents an idea, feeling or emotion.

A sculpture is not flat like a painting or photograph. It has a front, back and sides.

There is only one sculpture in this exhibition, can you find it?

The sculpture is called Symbol and was created by Clifford Last who made sculptures about life, family and the world.

Write down or talk about your answer.

- What do you think this sculpture looks like? Think about the shapes it has and what they might mean.

Some artists are more interested in shapes and things rather than people.

Jeffrey Smart was an artist who created paintings inspired by the places around him. He liked cities and the interesting patterns and shapes that he saw.

Can you find the painting with this arrow? Look up for this one.

Write down or talk about your answer.

- What else is in the painting?

A 'portrait' is a painting, drawing or photograph of a person. A 'self-portrait' is a portrait drawn by an artist of themselves.

Find this portrait by Constance Stokes. It is of her granddaughter Ysabella.

Write down or talk about your answer.

- What colour is the flower?
- Colour in the flower and the rest of the portrait.

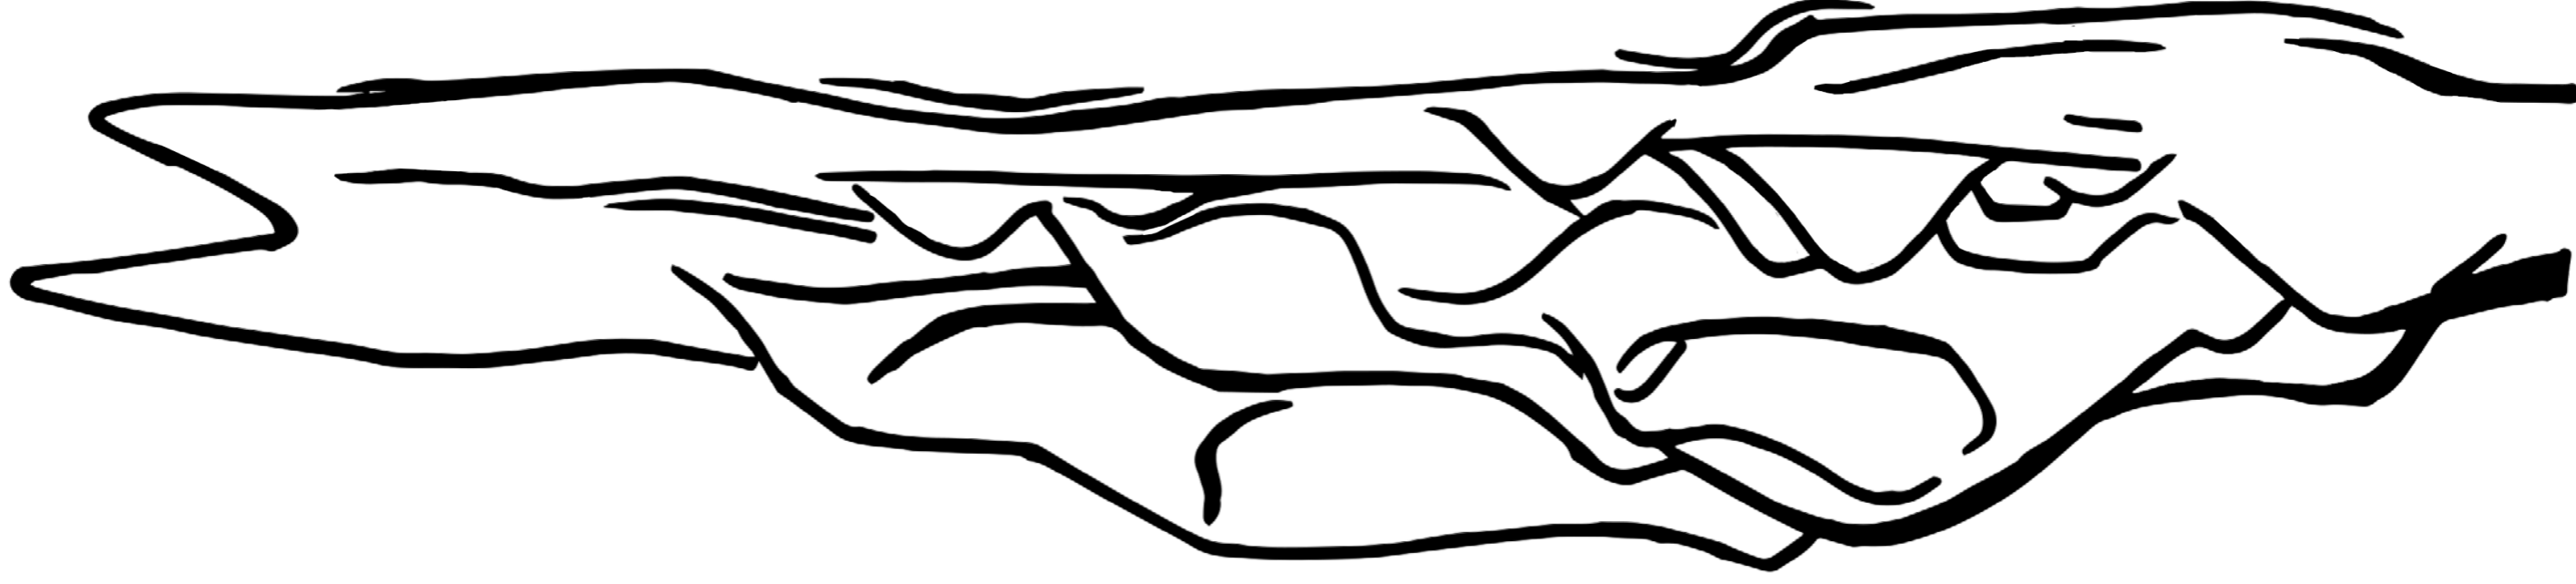

A landscape is an artwork which is about the country not the city. If the artwork is about the ocean then it is called a seascape.

Shay Docking liked to paint landscapes and seascapes in different ways.

Can you find her painting of a green island? What sort of painting is it?

• Create your own island using the outline. What colour will you make your island?

• Think about who lives on your island, what animals are there, what the air smells like, what the trees look like and draw them in too.
